

WHERE SNOW ABOUNDS AND REVELRY REIGNS

In Arctic Lapland the inhabitants clothe themselves in a way most likely to afford protection against the great cold. In the picture a young Lap and his bride are setting out in a sleigh drawn by "lucky" reindeer with a single antler.

French-Canadians in fancy dress on their way to take part in one of the carnivals which are such a pleasing and popular feature of winter life in certain districts in the Canadian Rocky Mountains. The great cold only adds to the excitement.

For any subject not found in its alphabetical place see information